

THE HEALTH OF BEAUFORT.

It is in a spirit of deep thankfulness and not of exultation that we give utterance to the belief that at the present time no place enjoys better health than the town of Beaufort. The only cases of yellow fever which have existed here were brought from Port Royal at the beginning of last week and both terminated fatally. Mrs. Casey dying on Saturday and Mr. Stern on Sunday. The undoubted fact is that our town was put into unprecedentedly excellent sanitary condition before the heat of the summer months came on, and from that time to the present the personal attention of Intendant Williams has been given to the scattering of disinfectants and deodorizers into every lurking place of pestilence. Of course, since the appearance of yellow fever at Port Royal the vigilant town officials have been doubly vigilant and large fires of sawdust, tar and refuse rosin are burned in the streets from sunset to sunrise. Meanwhile the entire freedom from any kind of sickness and the present auspicious weather permit us to indulge in the belief that Beaufort will maintain its character as a remarkably healthy locality which it has heretofore been noted for.

Our deepest sympathies are aroused at the condition of our sister village of Port Royal which is now suffering from a visitation of fever probably introduced by the steamer City of Dallas on a trip from Fernandina, which after entering and leaving Port Royal was quarantined in New York on account of her having sailed from Fernandina, where the telegraph had in the mean time made known the presence of yellow-jack. The increase in the number of those stricken with the fever has caused a total cessation of business and a consequent increase of want of the necessities of life incident to such a state of affairs. Several physicians and nurses have been furnished from Charleston, Savannah and Augusta as well as from Beaufort. At the present time some of the sick have become convalescent, while there still remain under treatment 46 persons, 34 white and 12 colored. The number of deaths has been 12, all white persons. This is a time, in our opinion, when the best feelings of our nature are aroused and not a season for charges or counter-charges to be made. We therefore print the letter of the Health Officer with reluctance and hope that further discussion will be postponed for the present.

YELLOW FEVER IN AUGUSTA.

The authorities of Augusta have seen fit to quarantine citizens of Beaufort because the yellow fever is raging in Port Royal, ignoring the fact that no case has yet originated in our town. The Augusta papers have not yet learned that there have been a dozen cases in their city, mostly refugees from the workshops in Port Royal, and that one of them named Oscar Mills, a freeman on the railroad, died in Augusta 1st Saturday with black vomit. It would be much more in accordance with reason were the officials of Beaufort, to quarantine Augusta.

President Hayes' Southern tour is a notable parallel of a journey made by President Washington soon after the organization of the government. This visit was made as soon as was convenient after the final adjournment of the first Congress. Hamilton's schemes for funding the State debts, levying internal taxes on spirits and establishing a United States bank had excited great hostility in the South and it had been boldly claimed that the taxes on spirits could never be collected. It was the aim of the administration to reconcile all sections to these first measures of the new National Government whose permanency was then, and for many years afterward, constantly doubted by every faction on whose interests particular measures were thought to bear with an excessive weight. The President had previously visited New England and had been most enthusiastically received. The Southern trip was made by himself without any member of the Cabinet accompanying him. In the month of March Washington set out travelling with one set of horses and making occasional halts. The route projected, and of which he had marked out the halting places, was by Fredericksburg, Richmond, Wilmington N. C., and Charleston to Savannah; thence to Augusta, Columbia and the interior towns of North Carolina and Virginia, comprising a journey of 1887 miles, all of which he accomplished without any interruption from sickness, bad weather or any accident. He returned to Philadelphia on the 6th of July much pleased with his tour. It had enabled him, to see with his own eyes the situation of the country, and to learn more accurately the disposition of the people than he could have done from any verbal information. He had looked around him, in fact, with a parental eye, been cheered as usual by continued demonstrations of the nation's love, and his heart had warmed with the reflection, how much of this national happiness had been won by his own patriotic exertions.

Now, after a lapse of 86 years, and after infinite trouble and disaster, there is an appearance once again of a disposition in the Southern States to accord to the Federal Government a hearty support in wielding the national authority and enforcing the laws. Now, as then, and with the same good motives, the President of the United States has passed through several of the Southern States for the purpose of meeting the people and cherishing the growing sentiment of regard for the Union, and the increasing disposition to obey the laws.

The Charge of Bribery.

The examination of Robert Smalls was begun in Columbia on Saturday last and postponed until Monday in order to secure the presence of that essential witness for the State, Josephus Woodruff, who testified under oath that on the 18th of January, 1873, he paid to Smalls, then Senator from Beaufort County, a check for $5,000 as a bribe to secure his vote as Senator for the passage of the bill appropriating the enormous sum of $325,000 for the public printing in which Woodruff and A. O. Jones were jointly interested.

Leroy F. Youmans Esq., Counsel for the State elicited in evidence by reading the Journal of the Senate, the fact that Smalls voted for the passage of the bill when it came up for a third reading. It was also shown by the production of the check used in consummating the bribe and the books of the South Carolina Banking and Trust Company, that on the 18th day of January 1873 Woodruff was debited with the check for $5,000 and on the same day, that amount was credited to Smalls. No witnesses for the defence were offered, and further examination being waived, Mr. Smalls was bound over to the next term of Court in the sum of $5,000, Senator Nash and his wife and Postmaster Wilder furnishing the bail, temporarily at least, with the understanding that other security could be substituted if deemed by the Court sufficient. The next scene of the drama will open in the Court of General Sessions in Columbia on the 22nd day of October and we must not forecast the issue, for it must be remembered that the defendant, Robert Smalls has not hesitated to hold his right hand up to Heaven, in the presence of his fellow citizens in this Town and call upon his God to witness that he has never been a participant in any fraud whereby the people of this State have been wronged of a dollar. Senator Maxwell of Marlboro' county underwent an examination similar to that of Mr. Smalls, except that the amount which he was charged with having received at the same time and for the same reason was only one-fifth as much. During the course of the examination by a slip of the tongue Woodruff fell the information that ex-Senator Jones and A. J. Ransier had been recipients of checks under similar circumstances.

Chief Justice Carter of Washington having issued a warrant, on the requisition of the Governor of South Carolina, for the arrest of Senator J. J. Patterson, a visit was soon thereafter made to the residence of the Senator by the Marshal, when it was ascertained that the Senator was not at home. His counsel, however, knew of his whereabouts, and accordingly prepared a petition for a writ of habeas corpus in advance of the service of the writ for arrest by the Marshal. When all the preliminaries for the petition of a writ of habeas corpus were completed, the Marshal was informed of the locality of the Senator, whereupon the arrest was made by him, and immediately thereafter counsel appealed to Judge Humphreys for a writ of habeas corpus, the petition based on the following grounds: First That Senator Patterson was regularly elected a Senator of the United States in 1872 and shortly after came to the District of Columbia, and has remained here in the discharge of his duties; that during the interval from that period to the present he has visited South Carolina several times, but that he has committed no crime in the State, and that he has continued to reside here temporarily as a Senator, and therefore, it cannot be said, in the terms of the requisition, that he is a fugitive from justice. Second—the term of the court at which the indictment was found was not the regular term of the court. It was not held at the time and place authorized by the law, and consequently the finding is of no validity and the indictment on which the requisition was founded is void. Judge Humphreys issued the writ of habeas corpus addressed to the Coroner, who served it on the Marshal, demanding that he produce the body of Senator Patterson. The Marshal, in obedience to the writ, did so. To allow time for the arrival of the Attorney-General of South Carolina, a hearing was postponed until the 17th, inst, and Mr. Patterson gave bail for his appearance in the sum of $2500.

Ex-Treasurer Spilner's view on the situation. Ex-Treasurer Spilner, who so long and faithfully watched the money bags of the Government and who understands the working and necessities of our financial machine as well as any other man, in a recent interview with a newspaper reporter said: "The financial question is in reality not so difficult as many suppose. I was brought up a bullion Democrat, and am quite willing there should be a metallic currency for those who wish one; but I think paper is best. Wm. D. Kelly has the true idea, though it is not original in elasticity. At times an expansion of the circulating medium is necessary for the purchase of crops, transportation, etc. What we want is an issue of legal tender notes, convertible at any time into an interest-bearing bond of the United States—a bond for which the holder could get currency with accrued interest whenever he should desire. At a rate of interest no higher than 3.65 per cent. the desired amount of circulation would be absorbed when not used for commercial purposes, and the bonds would be converted when the business of the country required a large amount of currency. Such currency would soon be on a par with gold, and it would be the parent of a new prosperity and of a new era of patriotism. The present plan of resumption will have no other effect than to oppress the people and cripple the energies of Government. Without a change in the financial policy the worst is yet to be apprehended. The people will not stand too much oppression.

their Republican associates. Be they who they may—if the bluest blood of the State courses through their veins—they should wear the striped clothes of the penitentiary, under a less tender-hearted superintendent than Parmelo.—Darlington News.
